CALL FOR PAPERS

STORIE (di) CERAMICHE 9

"Slipware pottery"

In memory of Graziella Berti

Pisa, 11 June 2022

Once again, nine years after her death, we remember Graziella Berti, a prominent figure in historical studies on Pisa and the Mediterranean and one of Italy's leading experts on medieval and modern ceramics.

This year the conference day will focus on another of Graziella Berti favourite ceramic themes: medieval and modern slipware pottery.

The analysis on slipware ceramics, especially those produced in Pisa in the Modern Age, fascinated Graziella Berti since the first studies, and captured her attention until the last period of her life. Her attention was focused on reconstructing the ceramics' dating, production techniques, technological transmissions, circulation and use, social and economic impact, accompanying the research on material data with the investigation of written sources.

In this perspective, therefore, we welcome contributions offering a contextual vision of the medieval and modern slipware ceramics from Italy and the Mediterranean area, framing them in the society and economy of their time, in order to reconstruct their chronology, production, circulation, uses and consumption, also with the help of written and iconographic sources.

In order to encourage and help the diffusion of new studies, those interested may send a proposal for a paper on the above-mentioned topic no later than April 10, 2022 to storiediceramiche@gmail.com The Italian and English abstracts, of a maximum of 1,000 characters including spaces, must be accompanied by the curriculum vitae et studiorum of all contributors.

The study day is organized in collaboration with the Società Storica Pisana.
